the merits of the Bangor hospital He said

There are two great schools of medicine, the Allopathic and Homeopathic And the great mass of people are beginning to come to the opinion that neither school holds the monopoly of sckunith medical truth I am personally locilized to think that the truth lies more nearly with the new school than with the old As I have said, I will not vote to appropriate public money which is raised by taxation from the Homeopathist as well as the Allopathist to the support of a hospital that does not have a Homeopathis physician on its staff, or at least one that will not allow one to be called in by patients who desire that treatment. The resolves in favor of the General Hospital of Portland and Lewiston are beyond the reach of amendment, and it is settled for the next two years at least that these hospitals will not have to have a Homeopathic physician on their staffs as a condition precedent to receiving the usual State aid.

Now I believe it is only fair to treat the hospital at Bangor in the same way you do the hospitals of Lewiston and Portland, and not require of it what you do not require of them. Hence I am In favor of the passage of this resolve without amendment. That will place the three hospitals on the State are concerned, and whatever measures may be taken in the future to compel these hospitals to adopt a brander and more liber.
